CNB Bank Named to ICBA's Independent Banker 2022 Best Community Bankers to Work For

Berkeley Springs, W.Va. (Dec. 1, 2022)—Independent Banker magazine, the award-winning monthly publication of the Independent Community Bankers of America (ICBA), today named CNB Bank as a 2022 Best Community Banks to Work For recipient. The $530 million-asset bank received accolades for empowering staff to make decisions that lead to more specific, personalized offerings for customers.

"We are honored to be named one of the Best Community Banks to Work For by ICBA Independent Banker magazine," CNB Bank President and CEO Mark D. Harrell said. "We firmly believe that if we take great care of our associates, those employees will also take great care of our customers. At CNB, we're focused on providing solutions versus selling products and that's helped us stay true to our mission of helping customers plan for their financial futures."

CNB is highlighted in Independent Banker's December issue representing community banks with $501 million to $750 million in assets. Each self-nominated community bank's full-time employees were asked to complete a workplace survey hosted by Avannis, an independent research agency. Key criteria considered in selecting this year's honorees included: work environment, compensation, leadership and corporate culture, and opportunity for recognition and advancement.

"ICBA is pleased to recognize CNB Bank for its commitment to its employees and the customers and community they serve, and we wish them continued prosperity in the future."
